Presidente de la
República de El Salvador

Nayib Bukele would have been crowned King Nayib, of Bitland June 8, 2021 had his kingdom been a monarchy.

Two years earlier, on June 1, 2019, Nayib Bukele was elected President of the Republic of El Salvador, a democratic state. Bukele will serve a 5-year stint, not a life span wearing a royal crown.

Months into his presidency, that coronation did come anyway. August 2019, Nayib and his wife Gabriela welcomed their first child, a darling girl, Layla, making that the year Nayib rose to power as president and the year he took flight into fatherhood.

His own late father, Armando Bukele, was an El Salvadorian businessman of Palestinian heritage. His mother, Olga Ortez de Bukele, prepared Bukele for the challenges and the jubilation of the journey.

At 41, Bukele's bold boyishness bequeaths him a free-reign style of leadership that begets much discontent from his political rivals.

Jack Mallers, in his speech at Bitcoin 2021 Miami conference (minus the cuss words), stated that he will make it a non-debatable choice for the people of El Salvador to use Bitcoin because of Strike, a fee-less technology he developed for sending around the globe, instantly. Using Strike, Bitcoin and crypto trades settle on the blockchain instantly and free globally.

The issues of banking, though, were not the only concerns weighing heavily on Mallers mind during his first 3-month residency in El Salvador.
